

MORNING APPEAL

Official Paper of Ormsby County.

THURSDAY.....JULY 13

Frisbie "In It."

Lyman Frisbie says if he cannot win the beauty contest there is something wrong with the intelligent female voting population of Carson. He has purchased a new pair of curling irons and curls his mustache every morning, uses cologne by the gallon, and anybody who approaches him cannot fail to understand that he has entered the contest to win. One can scent him a mile off. He is open for inspection, and can be found at his office on the sidewalk in front of Livingston's at any time between two and five o'clock in the afternoon. "Dempsey thinks he's got a walk-over," says Frisbie "but I'll show him that he's not in it, even if I have to get Al Mills to come down from Virginia and help me out. I'm in it to win and I'm in it to stay." Our vote goes for Frisbie.—Tribune.

ALL SORTS.

The graduating ball last night was a big success in every particular.

Bill Keogh, the Comstock pugilist, is in a Chicago insane asylum.

T. V. Julian, of Reno, and M. S. Bonfield, of Winnemucca, come in on yesterday morning's train.

Actions for divorce in San Francisco, on scriptural grounds, are now designated as "side entrance suits."

The "side entrance" racket is as old as the world. The creator must have used it when he took that rib from Adam.

Mrs. A. L. West and Miss Cora West have left on a visit to San Francisco, and from thence will proceed to the World's Fair.

The Lander County Grand Jury has found true bills against County Commissioners J. A. Blossom and L. Steiner for misconduct in office and bribery.

The Associated Press tells of Cleveland having a tooth pulled. We would rather hear of him having his leg pulled in the interest of free silver.—Dispatch.

E. C. Vonderdyke, formerly of this city but now a resident of San Francisco, had several small bones of his right arm broken a few days since by a barrel falling on him.

It is said that Mary of Teck, since her marriage puts on less airs than any titled woman of England. When a child she romped and played with the children of commoners, and is now pretty solid with the boys.

The Daily Report of San Francisco is the only paper on the Coast who has had the enterprise to station a regular correspondent at Swenlaetsew. If you don't take the Report you don't get the news of that section.

Chief Crowley of San Francisco startled the Police Commissioners the other day, by furnishing them with evidence of blackmail against three policemen and requested their dismissal. They were fired. Crowley is after more scalps.

Pursuant to the call of the President of the Silver League of the State, the Washoe County Leagues have called a meeting for Saturday, July 15th. There should be prompt action of the Ormsby Silver League, and a meeting called for the same night.

Young McDonald of the Pacific Bank, who preaches the beauties of banking exchange, went to Chicago not long ago and in order to save the exchange on a draft, put $16,000 in his trunk. When he reached Chicago the money was gone. The McDonalds always were a saving set.

A San Francisco jury has acquitted Belinda Laphame, charged with poisoning the two-day-old child of Mottie Watson. The defendant on the stand denied her guilt, while Robert Ferral, her attorney, in his argument, hinted that the child was killed by its mother to conceal the fact that her brother was the father. The jury was out but a few minutes.

THEORY AND PRACTICE.

A Financier who Tried to See What Silver was Worth.

ED. APPEAL:—Ever since the silver ticket was placed in the field last fall, I have been an enthusiast on the subject of free silver, but today I am free to confess that as a silver financier I am as rank a failure as ever sprouted in Douglas county.

When the news came that silver coinage had ceased in India, I placed little reliance in the stories of the depreciating effect it would have upon our silver, but as the days passed I found the decline had come to stay, with the worst to hear from.

I noticed that every drop of a few cents, was followed in like manner by a fall in wheat values until now I see no more show for the wheat raiser than the silver miner; for an ounce of silver will buy just as many pounds of wheat to-day, as it would when was double the present price. But what I started out to explain was, my failure in a bit of silver scheming.

In the running of my ranches and timber interest, the pay-roll is large and as I had been hauling out gold every month, with just enough silver to make proper change, a brilliant idea struck me. This idea was the cause of many sleepless nights and hours of mental worry, but the time came to act, and at it I went with a vim.

It was a clear proposition, I argued (to myself), that any fool might see the opportunity as I saw it; only others had not awakened to it as soon as I had, therefore what would soon become an every day occurrence, and immensely profitable, must have a starter, a father so to speak, and I resolved to be it. The only drawback to my plan was the fact of ready cash not being at hand for the grand scoop.

In summing up, I found I owned about a thousand dollars in small sums around the valley, and at the end of the month would owe as much more, and as my plans insured these payments by an outlay of a little over one-half the amount I felt easy on that score. But the simple payment of these was not sufficiently large for a man of my capabilities, so I decided to make a big killing and make more debts. In doing so, I had to do some fine figuring for most of the people of whom I borrowed money or bought cattle and grain, insisted on taking a note, and every one of them read "payable in U. S. gold coin."

Owing to my superior knowledge I suppose, it was not difficult to convince my neighbors that current coin was really what was meant, and the substitute was made. But when I got over the line into California, although only a few miles, the sentiment changed and the gold clause busted many a trade.

I succeeded, however, in buying some eight thousand dollars worth of marketable plunder principally on my notes at 60 days. You see I didn't care to give long time notes, for the simple reason that I expected to pay them all in less than a week, but no one was told of this for fear of their catching on to my racket.

I actually felt sorry, and was nearly moved to tears in one instance where I bought forty head of fine steers of a man, at really the market price, but in my own heart knew they were only costing me about one half the amount, but I restrained my emotion, and took in another lot at better figures (for me) that afternoon. Ten days of this work and I prepared to clean up.

I lacked about two thousand in cash, but had no difficulty in borrowing that of a neighbor, only that I thought him mighty particular in suggesting that he having better pasture than mine, that I might just as well run in some eighty head of steers for awhile. This party is a good silver man too, and he proved it by writing the note payable in silver money of the United States.

He would have made a good school trustee too, last Fall, but he would not run on any but the Silver ticket, and that was running over with candidates, with grown up girls in the family.

And now for my wind up. One morning last week I presented myself at the Bullion & Exchange Bank with exactly six thousand dollars. After being counted I was asked what I wanted done with it. I answered, "I'll take all it figures up to in silver dollars."

Jerusalem what a stir that made. "Why," says the banker, "we haven't a quarter of that in the bank."

What on earth do you want of so much silver anyhow?"

I answered: "That is my affair. I want silver, and at the going market price. As near as I can figure it out, a silver dollar is only worth today from 52 to 53 cents in gold. At least that's what the papers say, but I don't mind paying a little more, and here is the gold."

He didn't seem to catch my meaning exactly, for he replied: "By giving us time we might get the silver at the Mint." But I thought I might as well go there and get it as the Bank, so I packed my twenties down the street.

There I asked, "What's silver to-day?" and the reply was, "She's off two points and going to h—I I guess." Not caring to show my ignorance in this highly intellectual atmosphere, I made no comments, other than to ask, "what is a silver dollar worth today in gold?"

Some one spoke up and said 52 cents, another said 53, while the fat man near the door thought 55 was about the figure.

"Now gentlemen," says I "if you are pretty well fixed for silver today, just trot out these six thousand dollar's worth at the running rate, and I'll try and work off about eleven thousand or so up in our country, where they are worth a hundred cents, and will be until the fossils all catch on."

At this they all laughed and I intended to, but when one chap says, "Uncle you can have exactly six thousand silver dollars and no more, for a like amount in gold," the laugh left me, so did my silver scheme.

I argued and pleaded, but no go. I went home a poorer and sadder man. The newspapers all lie when they say a silver dollar isn't worth a dollar. Here I am loaded up with cattle and stock, enough to run the country, bought at top prices, with the expectation of getting silver at the market price, and all on account of the darned newspaper lies.

The chances are, that when my 60 day note comes due, I can't get silver enough to pay it. I am done with any more financiering where Uncle Sam is concerned in it.

A SILVER CRANK.

A Lady's Protest.

ED. APPEAL:—I think the APPEAL's male beauty shew one of the greatest humbugs I ever saw. There is hardly a name in the whole list that a woman of taste would look at a second time on the street. If I am any judge of male beauty I should say, that the homeliest collection of men in Carson have been entered in the "Phiz Contest" as you call it.

If I looked like some of those people I would pawn my face pretty cheap and then lose the pawn ticket the first chance I got. Yours,

A CARSON GIRL.

[The APPEAL agrees with the above. Some of the men in the contest would cause a cat to jump from a 4 story window on top of a bramble bed. There are too many entries in the race, and the track isn't wide enough to run so many broken down nags, some of whom should have been retired from turf years ago.

To-day the judges ordered the dropping from the list of all who only had one tally. A man who can't start in with but one vote, had better quit. They can't show up in the track again with less than 10 votes.]
